Uruguay-Argentina Will Jointly Bid For 2030 World Cup

MONTEVIDEO, Feb 28 (NNN-NNN-MERCOPRESS) -- Uruguay and Argentina will take advantage of the coming 2011 America Cup (Copa America) to promote their joint candidacy for soccer's major event - the 2030 World Cup on occasion of the centenary of the first time the tournament was played.

On July 1930 the first World Cup was organised and played in Montevideo with Uruguay beating Argentina in the final 4-2, thus also becoming the first country to win the Cup, sources said.

Argentine Sports minister Claudio Morresi visited Montevideo over the weekend to begin coordination activities with his Uruguayan counterparts from the Ministry of Tourism and Sports headed by Hector Lescano.

"In the round of meetings we have planned, we will draft a road map with the main strategic lines for the joint promotion of 2030, during the Americas Cup and we hope presidents Cristina Fernandez and Jose Mujica will be participating", said Minister Lescano.

In 2009 Argentina and Uruguay created a bi-national committee to begin working on the joint candidacy. In spite of the distance in time, "we are still 19 years away, we really only have eight years left" said Morresi.

"We know the 2018 Cup is to be played in Russia and the following in 2022 in Dubai and it was announced in 2010; so at the latest in 2019, a decision will be made", he added.

"I think we have a very strong case: the first Cup was played in Montevideo, Uruguay and Argentina computed in the final and both countries have a very rich and distinguished football history: Uruguay two Cups, 1930 and 1950, and Argentina, 1978 and 1986", said Lescano.
